Nice

Summary: Murasaki's thoughts about Nice.

1

It really frustrated Murasaki when Nice decided to do cheap jobs instead of the better-paying ones. Murasaki knew that Nice could be making a better living and pay on his jobs if he stopped making the least-beneficial choices - in terms of money anyway.

Murasaki was not a person who got jealous easily, but that was different with Nice. Despite Murasaki's best efforts in besting him, and Nice's careful attitude, Nice always came out on top, and although Murasaki was reluctant to admit it, he knew that Nice was the superior one when it came to their minimums. That never changed, and that irritated Murasaki.

But two people are needed in this duo partnership of theirs, and even if Nice was the top graduate from the academy they used to attend and had the highest scores out of all the students there, he couldn't do everything himself. There were times that he needed Murasaki's help, and that made Murasaki happy, though he would never admit that to Nice.

After all, in this one-sided rivalry of theirs at Murasaki's part, Nice was still his friend, and it's nice to know that he could depend on Murasaki sometimes.
